5. Rose Henry for City Council Campaign

Dear Friends,

Posted by

Monday, 07 November 2005 07:20 - Last Updated Monday, 07 November 2005 07:20

As most of you would know, local social activist Rose Henry has entered her second campaign to break the cultural barrier at City Hall in becoming the first aboriginal person on council.

Rose is an outstanding voice for the poor and the homeless in our community, having devoted an accumulated almost two decades of service at the Native Friendship Centre, Sandy Merriman House shelter for women, Victoria Street Community Association, Together Against Poverty Association and the Vancouver Human Rights Coalition. She stands up for the rights of the most marginalized and dispossessed in our city.

She is herself a survivor of a racist colonial system and the foster care system and who faces the multiple barriers of being a First Nations woman, a visible minority, who has lived in poverty her whole life and who has the great strength of being able to authentically represent the reality, issues and needs of a whole segment of the population whose voices are systematically excluded and ignored in the realms of political power, privilege and decision-making.

City Hall has long been the domain of the privilege and the comfortable, the educated and the middle class.

It is no coincidence that the issues affecting the poor are year after year given short shrift. Class interests on city council have almost unanimously been with those who stand for big development and private profits before people's real needs, affordable housing, public transit and poverty alleviation.

Rose is no newcomer to social justice struggles. She operates on substance and not slick. She is one person who will put the urgency of Victoria's pressing social issues at the top (rather than the bottom) of the agenda at City Hall. She is a compassionate and hard-working advocate who will serve beyond the call of duty to press for solutions to the growing problems that our community faces: addiction, homelessness, intolerance, housing affordability, public safety.

In the 10 days ahead I urge all of you to consider what resources of time and/or finances you can devote to helping Rose win a seat on council. She is in need of canvassers and some funds to put up a few signs around town.

Rose has stood with all of us in the social justice community for a long time. It's time that we stood with her now.

6. Gregory Hartnell's 10 Point 'Recovery Plan Victoria'

The President of the Concerned Citizens' Coalition, Gregory Hartnell, unveils his ten point 'Recovery Plan Victoria'

As President of the Concerned Citizens' Coalition, I've watched with grave concern as fiscal accountability, conservation and solidarity with the poorest of the poor goes by the wayside under the present administration.

I have a ten-point plan based on three basic principles: accountability, conservation and solidarity. Wary as the next common sense citizen-voter, of aspiring or incumbent politicians making grand promises that will never be fulfilled, let us ensure that a more dignified Victoria come to full fruition.

9. Questions for candidates, from the Make Poverty History campaigners

What do you propose to do about homelessness, and the lack of detox centers and safe injection sites?

Do you feel it is fair to anyone concerned to have the public library serving as a de facto drop-in centre for the homeless?

Will you set aside an area accessible to downtown where homeless people will have access to land for growing food?

Will you encourage measures such as relaxing zoning laws to allow multi-family occupancy and sleeping in cars?

Will you lobby the federal government for extra funds, given that Victoria attracts more than its share of the homeless?

What will you do to make our streets more friendly to pedestrians and cyclists, strollers, scooters and wheelchair users?

What will you do to expand bus coverage, particularly from the Fairfield/Cook Street Village area where there is no service?

Do you feel it is appropriate to have Victoria's school meal breakfast program provided by the Salvation Army?

What is your stand on decriminalization of prostitution?

At last tally, Vancouver Island had enough food for three or four days - period! Given the threat of transport disruption, how do you plan to ensure we have enough food?

Seismologists feel a major or tsunami earthquake is overdue. Do you feel our warning systems are adequate?

In an environment where more and more people suffer from chemical sensitivities, asthma and other environmental health issues, what will you do?

Many of us feel strongly about access to fresh water. Will you fight to keep Victoria's water supply in public hands?

What will you do to make legal aid and dental care accessible to the poor?

What measures will you take to halt the spread of epidemic diseases such as AIDS, hepatitis and TB, which disproportionately affect the poor?

Will you make licenses required for busking and craft sales more accessible to the poor (or, better yet, eliminate them)?

What do you see as a viable direction for Victoria's economy given your support for Fair Trade and ethical consumption?

Below, you will find a list of the candidates, for the Capital Region's Saturday, November 19th local elections, who requested Victoria Labour Council's endorsement of their candidacy and signed their commitment to "Principles of the Victoria Labour Council," a 12-point document that follows the candidate contact information further below. Our Wednesday, October 19th, 2005 general meeting's motions to endorse the candidacy of the candidates carried except as noted.

Victoria Labour Council encourages you to call or drop in to one of the endorsed progressive candidates' campaign offices to offer to help phone or leaflet, or to ask through what other task you could assist in electing the candidate. We hope you will encourage members of your union local or other organization to do similarly. Alternatively, please consider sending even a small financial contribution.

influential to be left up to the campaign efforts of only people who have more free time or resources than working-class citizens do. We are not asking you to commit either a lot or more than you are able; we are encouraging each progressive working-class resident who is able: to contribute just a little bit of time or money in whatever way you are able. All our little bits over the next three weeks will add up and put some candidates ahead of others.

Please remember and let members of your union or organization know that, for the first time, this year voters in the Capital Region will have the opportunity to elect candidates to our Capital Regional District Board! Victoria Labour Council thanks Denise Savoie, current CRD Director and Victoria City Councillor, for her initiative in this progress. Initiative is one of Denise Savoie's many strengths, and Victoria Labour Council is trying to elect Denise Savoie, Victoria's New Democrat candidate, as Victoria's next MP in the upcoming federal election. To contribute time of any amount or individual gifts of any size to Denise Savoie's federal election campaign after November 19th, Victoria Labour Council enthusiastically and strongly encourages members and community allies to contact us (through my Political Action co-chair, Karin Hass ).

May Greater Victoria's progressive working-class citizens create the progressive change we want to see in our local governments on Saturday, November 19th. Local elections more than any others are regularly decided by small numbers of citizens! Together, Victoria Labour Council's members and community allies each giving just a little time over the next 3 weeks have the ability to make all the difference. By each pitching in a little political action, we can help our region elect those representatives who will help bring in at least secondary sewage treatment throughout our region, and those school board trustees with voting patterns that strengthen the public good and the future of all our community's children, and we can make our region's communities more economically inclusive, environmentally healthy, sustainable, and stronger!

In solidarity,
