1. Message from Tre ~

Hello to everyone out there! In case you haven't heard, my extradition hearing has been progressing as well as can be expected. My deepest gratitude and love to all those who bless me with their smiling, shining faces during the extradition hearings. And to all of you who have been keeping me in your thoughts and prayers during these times.... A huge thanks to you as well. I send huge props to Tim Russell, my lawyer who delivered a compelling and solid argument opposing my extradition. I feel the judge was fair in her receiving the submissions. She could have been hostile or unwilling to hear some of Tim's presentation, yet she listened, took notes and allowed him to submit arguments dealing with the details of my case. These hearings can be a bit dry and overwhelmingly sleep inducing and I'm glad it's over. This Thursday July 7th, the Judge will make her decision on some or all of Tim's submissions. So when we hear the word we will pass on whatever news we have and what that means for my future.

As oppressive, grueling, violating and disconcerting as this incarceration has been, I know there are so many others around the world who are suffering far worse than I am. I am so blessed to have so many beings in my life surrounding me with love, support and strength. An injustice to one is an injustice to all...whether it's a tree, aboriginal, womyn, or a whale; we are all impacted and affected by how every living thing is treated. May we manifest a world with equality and justice for everyone and everything. Namaste Tre
